

Professional Development for Teachers

Independence Park Institute

Archives & Archeology Workshop

Date: October 4, 2008

Time: 9:00 am to 1:00 pm

Cost: $40

A Workshop for Teachers of Grades 5-12

Learn how archives and archeology can be used in teaching history. Participants will get a tour of Franklin Court and the President's house archeology sites, learn about the park archival collection, speak with an archeologist, and receive lesson plans.

Professional Development Credit

Teachers from Pennsylvania and New Jersey will earn four professional development (Act 48) credit hours while taking an archeologist's look at Independence National Historical Park. Educators will learn about teaching with primary source documents, discover how archivists and archeologists use clues to piece together history, and have the opportunity to explore Independence Park Institute's hands-on classrooms.

Registration

Registration is limited to 22 teachers. You must register before October 2, 2008. To register contact Education Program Manager Jeffrey Collins at:
